Polite Reminders

Would members please use the designated tables in the hall for the staging of their exhibits and not the actual show tables, potentially disturbing entries already staged.

It is also essential that the ante-room is used for staging of floral entries rather than the main hall to prevent possible spillage of water in the hall.

Why not put an entry into our show ?

We're always looking for new people to put exhibits into our show to make it bigger and better. It is not as daunting as it may seem and there are always people around on the day to offer help and make sure you enjoy the experience.

In our Annual show we have specific classes in the Vegetable and Flower sections for people that have never won a vegetable or flower class in one of our Annual shows - they're under the Novice headings. Of course you can enter any, or all, of the classes in the schedule - the novice classes just mean you would not be up against people who've won classes before.

The show is meant to be fun and the majority of people simply show things that look good from their garden or allotment - so why not give it a try.

THE ROYAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S POINTS SYSTEM

The Horticultural Show Handbook incorporates rules for judging of fruits, vegetables, flowers and ornamental plants. In the preparation of that manual the help of specialist societies was recruited and the National Vegetable Society was the specialist organisation for vegetables.

It gives an exhibition value for any kind of vegetable governed by the difficulty of producing a perfect dish; maximum points value is 20, some rate 18 points, some 15, 12, 10 or 5 points. The points are made up of consideration for condition, size and uniformity, though sometimes an additional factor is included such as shape, solidity, firmness, colour, eyes, straightness and so on. The idea is to enable different collections of vegetables to be compared and to impose a measure of uniformity on the judging.

Tips for Showing

Pick up a booklet from the Seed box of tips we've put together for displaying entries in all of our shows. Some of the tips are described below.

- If class details state a maximum or minimum size then you must ensure that all of the exhibits in your entry conform.
- If you are asked to leave some foliage, don't forget.
- When showing more than one specimen they should be as uniform as possible. This also applies to the "any other vegetable" class.
- When showing tomatoes leave a little stalk attached.
- When showing beans leave a little hook of stalk on each and should be as straight as possible.
- If you are showing jams or pickles etc. ensure that there is no brand name visible on the jar or lid that you use.
- To show shallots stand on a plate in a little sand. Onions can be shown stood on rings cut from toilet rolls or similar.
- Trim the roots of leeks, onions and shallots and make sure they are dry (particularly around the top)
- Regardless of length carrots with a rounded tip are 'stump rooted' whilst 'pointed' carrots taper to a point.
- After digging potatoes put into water so that dirt can be wiped off without damaging the skins.
- Vegetables should be clean but take care not to damage them.
- If you have any questions then ask at the Seedbox or bring your potential exhibits along to the show where a committee member will always be happy to advise you.
- Apples should be shown with stalks downwards.
